

The DCNR Bureau of Forestry Presents: “Making The Most Of Your Piece Of Nature” A “Sustainable Backyard” Workshop

Saturday, February 23rd, 2019 8:00 to 12:30

Butler County Community College, Succop Theater
107 College Drive, Butler, PA 16002

Valuable information for all homeowners! If you own a half acre, one acre, five acres, or a hundred, we will show you how to enjoy wildlife right in your own backyard.

Don't miss this great opportunity!

Topics Include:

Keynote Address: The Value of Connecting With Nature
Ellen Shultzabarger, State Forester, Director of The Bureau Of Forestry

How To Plant And Maintain Healthy Landscape Trees
Scott Sjolander, Penn State Extension Urban Forester

Plants & Practices for Establishing your Pollinator Haven
Laura Hlusko, Penn State Master Gardener

Deer Proof Your Landscaping With Native Plants That Deer Don't Eat
Andrew Rorhbaugh, Botanist, The Bureau Of Forestry

Because Everyone Has A Backyard, and Every Backyard Is Important Wildlife Habitat!

www.ncadvertiser.com

sjmastergardeners.ucanr.edu

Photo: Dave Cole

Cost: Free, open to the public Coffee and donuts provided Woods/Landscaping related exhibitors

Registration Required

Use eventbrite.com: Type in “Making The Most Of Your Piece Of Nature” or email Dave Cole at davcole@pa.gov